08APR19	National	Totally continues to turnaround Vocare <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Totally Health, the services provider for the out-of-hospital healthcare sector, is turning around Vocare, an integrated urgent care services provider to the NHS, which it acquired for £11 million back in 2017.</li> <li>Vocare provides GP out-of-hours services, NHS 111 services via its call centres, and urgent care centres for NHS A&amp;E departments, for Clinical Commissioning Groups covering over 9 million patients nationally. The size of market is substantial, with the NHS spending £120bn per year. £20bn of that outsourced.</li> <li>Vocare was previously the subject of reports highlighting inadequacies of some of its services. The acquisition was aimed to expedite the turnaround in Vocare's quality of service.</li> <li>In August 2017, the NHS announced that contracts will only be awarded to "providers who are able to supply the total integrated service of the NHS 111 non-emergency service, GP out of hours and Urgent Care Centres". Given that Vocare is integrated supplying all those services, the group looks to be positioned well.</li> <li>Totally CEO, Wendy Lawrence stated, "We now look forward to the year ahead where we intend to continue to deliver high quality services, whilst seizing the opportunities that exist within the integrated urgent care sector, in line with the NHS' Long Term Plan published in January 2019 ."</li> </ul>	https://www.voxmarkets.co.uk/articles/totally-continues-to-turnaround-vocare-Of64683/

Diabetes and its complications cost the NHS over £10 billion every year to treat, with one in six patients in hospital now having diabetes. There is strong evidence that the onset of Type 2 diabetes can be prevented or delayed in those at high risk through improved quality of diet, an increase in physical activity and successful weight loss.</li> <li>▪ Building on their combined experience, Liva Healthcare and LWTC have built a service for pre-diabetic patients across the UK.</li> </ul>	http://digitalhealthage.com/nhs-england-announces-providers-in-diabetes-prevention-programme/

09APR19	National	Leader named for NHS digital transformation unit, but scepticism persists <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ NHSX, the new authority for driving forward the digital transformation of England's NHS has named its new leader - but some in the health service are questioning how effective the new centrally-run organisation can be.</li> <li>▪ Matthew Gould is currently the director general for Digital and Media at the Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport, and will take on the lead role at NHSX - the X standing for 'user experience' - this summer.</li> <li>▪ The new arm's length body is the brainchild of health secretary Matt Hancock, and has been created to accelerate the digital transformation of the NHS, both in its back office functions and also in its services for patients. Part of its pledge is to also make using technology easier for healthcare professionals - seen as key for passing on the benefits to patients.</li> <li>▪ The creation of NHSX reflects Hancocks' frustration at the slow pace of change in the NHS, and also his inability to influence projects, which until now have largely been driven by NHS England. This will change as NHSX take over from the oversight currently divided between NHS England, NHS Improvement and the Department of Health and Social Care.</li> <li>▪ Gould will set the national direction on technology, and has pledged to "improve the care that everyone in the country gets by making sure both staff and patients have the technology they need", over the next few years.</li> </ul>	https://www.pmlive.com/pharma_news/leader_named_for_nhs_digital_transformation_unit_but_scepticism_persists_1283965

10APR19	National	The doctor will see you now: making the whole patient-GP relationship virtual <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ The UK is slowly progressing towards a situation where it may be possible for a patient's entire relationship with primary healthcare providers, like GPs, to be virtual. From ensuring quick access to patient data, to the patient- doctor consultation and from ordering prescriptions to tracking adherence and feeding back data, a seamless virtual cycle is entirely imaginable– but how will it work in real life?</li> <li>▪ A central part of the NHS' Long Term Plan is to improve data sharing and communication across the NHS. Since the NHS is made up of a range of large, separate, but closely linked organisations, sharing data is very complex and time consuming. Technology can help to accelerate and improve these processes, allowing clinicians and nurses to be able to focus on quality care.</li> <li>▪ As part of this commitment, NHS Digital introduced a new service called GP Connect across the city of Leeds in September last year. This scheme allows GP practices and clinical staff to share and view patient records digitally from anywhere and across different IT systems.</li> <li>▪ The NHS believes a system such as this will improve data sharing between primary and secondary care, facilitating better knowledge of a patient prior to consultation and easing, as well as improving, decisions about patient care.</li> <li>▪ NHS Digital describes the benefits of the electronic prescription service (EPS) as reducing the administration burden on doctors and pharmacists, less paper is being wasted and patients collecting repeat prescriptions without needing to go to the GP or worrying about losing the paper prescription.</li> </ul>	https://www.medicaldevice-network.com/features/making-the-patient-gp-relationship-virtual/

Those not facing a serious emergency are urged to consider alternatives to 999 including calling NHS 111, visiting a walk-in centre or speaking to a pharmacist.</li> <li>▪ The Trust is also reminding people to order any repeat prescriptions and check opening hours of their GP surgeries and local pharmacies. However, the Solicitors Regulatory Authority (SRA) appealed the decision, and earlier this month a judge ruled in the High Court that Good be struck off the Roll of Solicitors after finding he had been dishonest.</li> <li>▪ More than 150 cases involving Good's firm were analysed at the original tribunal. In 22 of them, Rapid Response charged £400 an hour in fees. Despite the panel finding "most of the work" carried out should have been billed at between £111 and £146 an hour, it failed to make a ruling that he was dishonest.</li> </ul>	https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2019/04/13/dishonest-nhs-ambulance-chasing-lawyer-struck/
